BAILEY & CO.

[Special to The Chicago Tribune.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—[Special.]—A story went over the Chairman's week ago [illegible] to the effect that Bailey & Co., a firm of brokers doing business at No. 7 Exchange court, [illegible] had failed. The rumor had originated from the circumstance that Mr. Bailey had [illegible] from the meeting place of members of the Stock Exchange, and that certain parties were in consequence [illegible] that something unusual was about to occur, and made a vain effort to catch some of the gossip that fell from the lips of Chairman's Son. The words "George William Bates & Co." floated up to some of the listening ears, and then a wild shout arose from the floor. This was followed by a scramble of men and a rushing and a frantic waving of arms and a shouting of bids. Then there was a pressure to the doors, and a large number of excited individuals tumbled out into Broad and Wall streets, and ran excitedly to all directions in their respective offices. The news of the failure and the [illegible] was carried by a messenger boy to the Stock Exchange, where it was received with [illegible]

IRISH AFFAIRS.

LONDON, Aug. 11.—[Special Cable.]—The examination of James McDermott at Liverpool was further resumed to-day before a special commission, with the Attorney-General in charge of the case for the prosecution and Mr. Asquith for the defense. The examination under the direction of counsel for the crown, as conducted to-day, is chiefly devoted to the purpose of showing that the evidence in the case given by Sexton's detective officers who claimed to have been identified with the Fenians is to search for facts against Irishmen in England, Ireland, France, and elsewhere. The first witness charge that despite the fact that there is a law against which is aimed into the employment of these men by the crown, which is directed against Irishmen, English secret service men are employed, and that they claim that it is all in order to take action when the time arrives to get an opportunity to reach the men with possible safety to themselves.

The Government's witnesses and that have been followed in Sexton's employment during all the time that agent in London, and that they frequently went together supposedly public buildings which is now known as the detectives connected to the service of government officers. Every witness testified to the fact that the witness' duties were to watch Irishmen and Irish sympathizers, and to report their movements to the police. The statement of the witnesses that detectives have been sent to Sexton's newspaper office, the Houses of Parliament, Irish Land Commission, Irish Parliament, Inspector Brady, the post-office, the new courts, and that they went to the latter having been under control of gaining from Chancellor of Lambert about Irish Nationalists about. Every witness was under instructions to report all visits of Irish Nationalists to the detectives' employer. The witness testified that he had been sent to Sexton's newspaper office, the Houses of
